

Patriot Perspective

"Bind down the government with the chains of the Constitution."
Thomas Jefferson

Libertarians Manning the Only Life Raft

If you listen carefully amidst the drumbeats of war and partisan demands for 'more government', you'll hear the faint, but unmistakable demand to protect the inherent rights and freedoms of the next American generation. Alone on the only life raft the proud Libertarian stands up for what is right, honest and just. Both the Republicans and the Democrats have long since abandoned their Libertarian principles of absolute individual equality only to drown in a sea of socialism.

Libertarians don't do demographics — why would they if all individuals are to be treated equally by government? We celebrate diversity in individuals and ideas — that's what any society needs to thrive. I'd submit that Republicans and Democrats both try to divide the population up into groups, pit them against each other...and then offer to mediate. That's politics.

Naturally, when the selfless principles of a grand and greater cause are pitted against the selfish pull of political power, principles are not just pushed off to the side, they are disparaged and misrepresented. For instance, if you listen to the Republicans or the Democrats, Libertarians are 'pro' drug use, prostitution, Wild West gunplay or even educational ignorance. The truth couldn't be further from their assertions. Let's make this clear; Libertarian philosophy is NOT 'pro' anything except individual freedom, period. It is a philosophy that is staunchly 'anti-prohibitionist'; it's a philosophy that screams, "Leave me alone, government!"

Libertarians fight diligently to simply be left alone by government as long as they don't harm another person their property or their rights. They forward the principles that founded and prospered this incredible nation, and adherence to the rule of legitimate law. That would be the Constitution, for all the Republican and Democrat readers.

So why do politicians of all stripes from Bill Clinton to George Bush and most of our local politicians claim to 'lean' Libertarian. Simple answer, to attempt to gain the moral high ground, but they are lying.

When Ronald Reagan told me I was not a Republican, I was heartbroken. After all, I was from New Hampshire...and I grew up in a Republican household. When he told me I was a Libertarian, I thought he was calling me names. Then he eloquently explained, "You won't compromise on principle, and you hold government to the same standard of moral accountability as you would an individual". To this day I'd say, "And the problem is what?" The Great Communicator

(Continued on page 2)

Inside this issue:

Libertarians Manning the Only Life Raft	1
Truth In Advertising	2
Who Ya Gonna Call?	8
A Note from the Editor	10
Ten Tips On How to Live in the New World Order	11

Patriot Perspective Newsletter

Edited by Texas Spitfire and produced by Texas Spitfire Productions. Published once a month or as time permits. T.S.P. is headquartered at Houston, Texas.

“Foreign aid might be defined as a transfer of money from poor people in rich countries to rich people in poor countries.”

- Douglas Casey,
Classmate of Bill Clinton
at Georgetown University

Libertarians Manning the Only Life Raft

(Continued from page 1)

set me on an irreversible path to strive to be worthy of the moniker of being called, “Libertarian”.

Libertarians enjoy the highest levels of intellectual and educational achievement by far because to become a Libertarian, that individual had to actually take an interest, then study the philosophy and finally to make a conscious choice to leave the next generation the only legacy of any value — individual liberty.

In all of my travels, only one person has even suggested that she wanted more government in her life. The rest, once they find out what we stand for, loudly say, “Me, too”, when we speak of our desire for a return to respect for our individual freedoms. So why don’t we hear more about Libertarianism? Because the mainstream press has cowed to pressure from Republicans and Democrats to keep us out of public debate and to minimize our effect of gaining political support among the uneducated masses—the mushrooms of the world. They’re playing just the drummer’s track and still calling it a Beatles song. Don’t buy the album—it’s fraud.

Still, freedom persists, but be warned by the words of JFK: “Those who make peaceful resistance impossible, make armed revolution inevitable”. Only Libertarians try to head off the inevitable.

Copyright of the author © 2004

“Talk is cheap ... except when Congress does it.”

-Unknown

Truth In Advertising by Barry Hess

Scene opens, fade in from black. Camera comes into focus on a young man as he heads down the stairs to the living room where he turns on the television.

Dialog: “I’ve heard all the scare tactics and my parents warnings that if I smoke pot, it won’t be long before I’m sticking needles in my arm and wind up hooked on Heroin. They say if I smoke pot that I’ll never do anything with my life, and I’ll be supporting gang violence and terrorism”.

He points the remote at the television.

Dialog: “So why don’t I believe them? Because I know people who have smoked pot and it didn’t seem to have any effect on what they’ve done with their lives, like this guy.”

{Direction: Every time character refers to television, he clicks the remote control.}

Flash to TV screen to reveal Bill Clinton.

Monologue: “Or him,”

“What this country needs are more Unemployed politicians.”

- Edward Langley, Artist (1928 - 1995)

(Continued on page 3)

Truth In Advertising

(Continued from page 2)

Flash to George Bush.

Monologue: "Or him,"

Flash to Thomas Jefferson.

Monologue: "Or him,"

Flash to Al Gore.

Monologue: "Or him,"

Flash to Dick Mahoney.

Monologue: "Or him,"

Flash to George Washington.

Monologue: "Or him,"

Flash to me. (I'm not too proud)

Monologue: "Or him"

Flash to Arnold Schwarzenegger.

Monologue: "Or her"

Flash to Janet Napolitano.

Dialog: "I wish my parents and these stupid commercials would just be honest. Don't the idiots behind this propaganda realize that we young people know the truth? Why don't they just say they don't want us to smoke pot, and leave it at that? ---Maybe then we'd have some respect for them. The lies just make us want to see what it's like for ourselves. What makes it 'cool' to use drugs is that our parents and their government are willing to lie to us about it. They just don't 'get it'"

{Voiceover: "When adults and politicians take responsibility for all of their choices, including their alcohol and prescription drugs, maybe our children will pay attention".}

{Direction: Fade to black.}

"People and nations are forged in the fires of adversity."

John Adams

"The grim fact is that we prepare for war like precocious giants and for peace like retarded pygmies."

Lester Pearson

"The meat of the buffalo tastes the same on both sides of the border."

Sitting Bull

(Continued on page 4)

Truth In Advertising

(Continued from page 3)

"There'll be a growing disparity between economics and politics. An economy that grows so rapidly is intractably global. On the other hand, the current political system is intractably national. So there is a growing dichotomy between a global economy and locally based politics."

- Walter Wriston

Now that would be an honest commercial.

Who knows but that the recent drug controversy still swirling around famed radio personality, Rush Limbaugh, may just have some good effect after all. It may just present the perfect opportunity to finally have an honest public discussion about drug use/abuse—what it is, and what it is not. And we finally have to acknowledge that just because a drug has the stamp of approval from some government agency does not make it any better, or more acceptable than those available from unidentified 'street' sources. Our objective should be to teach our children to not put any drugs into their bodies unless there is some real and compelling reason to do so.

I don't believe it's any of my (or your) business what Mr. Radio decides to do to, or put into his body. If we're ever going to convince our children that drugs and alcohol are not good choices, we have to be willing to set the example. It's about personal responsibility. The very idea of a drug being socially acceptable just because a bought-and-paid-for (by the drug companies) FDA 'approves it, is patently absurd. In fact, being a responsible parent means turning your back to government altogether when it comes to raising your children, including their education, but that's another commentary. Look what we've done. Think of the lives we've ruined by turning to the police or the judicial system to try and force our youngsters away from drugs! The economic effects of having a police record are devastating to the rest of your children's lives. We simply can't afford to continue to let bureaucrats in government ruin the lives of our children.

A lot of uninformed people have the wrong impression of Libertarians because we seldom bother to correct the idiotic thoughts forwarded by the socialist/Democrats and the fascist/Republicans. We know that both the Republicans and Democrats deliberately lie and say that we are 'pro' drugs. In fact Libertarians have the lowest incidence of drug use by far of people associated with political ideological philosophies, and incidentally, the highest educational/intellectual levels. For the record, the Republicans are up the scale from us (in drug use), and the Democrats up the scale from them, and to be a Greenie, I think it's a prerequisite.

"Join in the new game that's sweeping the country. It's called "Bureaucracy" Everybody stands in a circle. The first person to do anything loses."

- Anonymous

So let me make it clear, Libertarians are NOT 'pro' drug, we ARE anti-prohibition. We know that free people completely own themselves, and nobody, no matter how large a group they may represent (EVEN if it were everybody else in America—but you), nobody, has the right or authority to tell you what you can do to, or put into your body. And each of us is responsible for our actions, at all times. Do you see the distinction?

That having been said, I was compelled to compose this commentary because of the ridiculous commercials I've seen on TV that forward lies and make really insulting statements. They encourage drug use with false statements like, “You’re supporting terrorists” because even the dumbed-down, government-educated children realize that more oil money funds terrorism than anything else, yet no one dares say “Don’t drive--oil products fund Al Queda”.

(Continued on page 5)

Truth In Advertising

(Continued from page 4)

Next in line on my nonsense scale are the ones that say, “In a recent study, 1 in 3 drivers tested had marijuana in their bloodstreams”, yeah right. They forget to tell you that the ‘study’ consisted of 3 subjects, and it was...right after a Grateful Dead concert (I know, I know...). Oh, and they forget to mention that having traces of THC in your bloodstream means next to nothing considering the effects (if you have some good stuff) last only a few hours, but minute traces stay in your bloodstream for up to a month. That’s a real honest commercial, uh huh.

Probably the most pathetic is the one where a couple of guys in a car full of smoke having an attack of the munchies are at a fast food drive-thru window. As they pull away, a small child pedals in front of the car. The viewer is led to conclude that somehow the drivers being stoned was going to lead to the child being hit. That’s just plain silly. The first thing that came to my mind was, what kind of lousy parent let that little kid loose? And didn’t the parents teach the child to ride safely, meaning not in front of cars? If there were fault to be found in that scenario, 99% would have been the irresponsible parents, and the other 1%--the kid. Don’t mistake me, I’m not defending anyone who drives under the influence of anything, but I am insulted at the sophomoric attempts to blame every heart string puller on the ‘bad thing’ (in this case pot) of the day—and so are our youngsters.

I recall for my college peers (in the 70s), one of the favorite movies to watch stoned was a classic called “Reefer Madness”. Produced by the federal government, it too intoned that you’d become a murderer, a murderee, or would be raped by marijuana-crazed madmen if you smoked pot. Oh Hep me, Hep me I’m a’goin’ cwazy on the pot! Oy, vay!

In fact, the only crimes committed, as a direct result of smoking pot is that of ‘ice-box’ raiding or maybe crashing out in a bad spot on the floor. An ER nurse I was talking to recently asked me to guess how many times they had to put a pot smoker back together after they had been injured in an accident. I said 5%. She said, not even once. Then she volunteered that every day the drunks kept killing others and themselves. So is alcohol a drug, or what?

But not all of the propaganda commercials drive kids to want to smoke pot. There are one or two that are ‘spot on’, in my humble opinion. The ones I actually like are the ones entitled, “The Enforcer” and the like. Whoever wrote them was thinking clearly. The parent characters are taking charge of their children, not overly freak-ing-out or calling the cops into a family matter. They are putting their parentally re-

(Continued on page 6)

"We may not imagine how our lives could be more frustrating and complex -- but Congress can."

Cullen Hightower

*"With Congress, every time they make a joke
it's a law; and every time they make a law
it's a joke."*

Anonymous

"Bureaucracies are designed to perform public business. But as soon as a bureaucracy is established, it develops an autonomous spiritual life and comes to regard the public as its enemy."

- Brooks Atkinson

"A committee is a cul-de-sac down which ideas are lured, and then quietly strangled."

- Robert Katz

"A patriot must always be ready to defend his country against his government."

- Edward Abbey

Truth In Advertising

(Continued from page 5)

sponsible feet down and laying down the (family) law to the children in their charge. They put the responsibility of keeping kids off drugs back on the parents where it belongs.

In fact, gangs and terrorists (famously including the CIA) do profit handsomely by selling drugs. This is only possible because of the "Drug Pricing Enhancement Acts", also known (erroneously), as "The War on Drugs" doesn't stop drug use, it actually encourages it. My dad used to say, "If you want to see Barry do something...tell him he can't". But isn't that the way it has always been with adolescents? Dad has true insight into the psyche of a young mind.

The truth is, street drugs are now some seven times more available to our children than they were to those of us who grew up in the "Drug Culture", and BEFORE there was a "War on Drugs". If there is/was a Drug War, we aren't losing, we've lost, horribly and shamelessly. It's futile, like trying to stop war by making bullets illegal. Prohibition always creates desire and a huge opportunity to make money for those willing to do so.

Just as ending alcohol prohibition de-funded the bootleggers of old, so will ending the devastating effects of the pretend drug war. By not making such a big deal of them, kids tend to lose interest.

But ending the 'drug war' is not all that we need to do if we are to stem the tide we, as parents now face. And it will take some time. Primarily, we are just going to have to get back to responsible parenting. And that means we'll need more time away from work to put into our families. Does my constant harping on eliminating the income tax begin to make some more sense now? Just by doing the right thing and eliminating the income tax, an enormous number of parents now forced to work will afford themselves the ability for one parent to stay home and tend to the most important people in the world.

Sadly our horribly mis-guided government drug policy leaves homemade drugs completely untaxed, and unregulated. Now when I say unregulated, I mean there are NO controls or even a sensible requirement for full disclosure what-so-ever.

How's about we use our heads and respect the right of each individual to do to or put into their body whatever they choose, but let's hold them responsible for their actions and use it as an exacerbating circumstance rather than as a mitigating circumstance.

And don't mistake me. There are serious consequences to using drugs, and I know that, but laws against them have only served to encourage their use. Think about the stupid commercials that encourage drug use, like the "Purple Pill" commercials we have all become familiar with (and I still don't even know what it is). The only difference is that the ones granted a monopoly get to make the drug companies rich.

(Continued on page 7)

Truth In Advertising

(Continued from page 6)

How's about we require 'full disclosure' from anyone selling any kind of drug (including drug companies), and let each individual make informed decisions as to what is, or is not, good for them? With the Internet, we have the technology.

If we were to allow open and competitive drug markets, we would quickly de-fund the terrorists, and the drug gangs and they'll quietly away. "Poof" the end of gang violence. Why else do you suppose that the ones most vehemently against ending this 'modern day' prohibition are those who profit by them (illegal and legal)? And they're the ones with enough money to buy a slew of politicians.

"If it'll save only one life..." is the catch phrase we hear today, but we don't mean it. If we did, virtually all of the prescription kickback drugs would be pulled from the market (of course, they'd just show up on the black market if people had any actual use for them). Think about RU-486 that recently killed two teenage daughters. What aren't publicized are the many hundreds of other deaths that you'll never hear about. If we believed what we have said, it'd have been pulled from the market—wouldn't it? Instead, it'll soon be available over-the-counter. That's what highly paid lobbyists can do for the drug companies. These girls are 'acceptable losses' when it comes to profits.

Prohibition leads to new and ever more dangerous drugs. When I was growing up there were maybe six different drugs available, and that was it. There was Heroin (for the outcasts and the lost), speed (for truckers and college students trying to pull a few more minutes from the day) acid (for the freaky-freakies), downers (for the nervous or high-strung) and Pot...for everybody else. And that was it, with no market pressure for more. Now look what your drug war has done.

Did you know, that even without any kind of regulation, some 3,800 people died last year as a result of using 'illegal street drugs', but over 200,000 people died using 'legal' (prescription) drugs under doctor's care? It's pretty amazing what the power of suggestion will do....or the pressure for corporate profits.

What about Ritalin or Prozac? That's the real drug problem we face with the next generation. We tell our kids they have to take 'this' drug...but not that one. Hummm. That stupidity just doesn't compute to a young mind.

And while we're at it let's be truthful about this 'gateway' propaganda. All people who use Heroin fairly can be said to have smoked pot, but that doesn't make pot a 'gateway' drug, considering less than .001% (1 in a thousand) of those who have smoked pot ever use any other kind of (street) drug. The statistics showing alcohol as a gateway to harder drugs presents a far more compelling case.

(Continued on page 8)

"The much hyped leaders debates are just a political black hole that consume time, money, energy, resources, staff and adrenalin, and rarely produce anything other than a mush tie, allowing all the spin doctors to claim a phony victory."

Rod Love,
Canadian Alliance
campaign strategist

"The time to take counsel of your fears is before you make an important battle decision. That's the time to listen to every fear you can imagine. When you have collected all the facts and fears and made your decision, turn off all your fears and go ahead."

Gen. George Patton

Truth In Advertising

"Our God and soldier we alike adore.

Even at the brink of danger; not before; After deliverance, both alike requited. Our God's forgotten, and our soldiers slighted."

- Francis Quarles (English poet) 1632

(Continued from page 7)

If we are to rid ourselves, and our society of the scourge of drug use, we simply have to abandon the Clintonian postulate, "If its not illegal, it must be moral" and Ashcroft's "If it's illegal, it can't be moral", ridiculous. Remember who made them illegal, politicians who don't have any more sense, or morality than the average Joe on the street, maybe less. The perception of having 'power' will lead to wielding it. That's why I keep telling you these phonies we've elected suffer from the "Little Hitler Syndrome".

As a nation, we have the highest percentage of incarcerated people. And 60-70% are non-violent drug users. So the public gets to pay for pot smokers (legal expenditures, room, board and medical care, and their families welfare, food stamps, medical care and education) as we destroy the nuclear family in the process. Is it any wonder that prison bureaus are the fastest growing segment of government?

I think it's silly for the taxpayer to have to pay in excess of $1 Million dollars just because one person decided to smoke a joint one day, do you?

Let's stop all this false advertising, and just tell our kids the truth. Common Sense would suggest that the most effective way to get drugs out of the headlines and out of their bloodstreams, is to get back to teaching our children that they should respect themselves by not putting chemicals into their bodies.

Copyright of the author © 2004

"Treaties, you see, are like girls and roses: they last while they last."

- Charles de Gaulle

Who Ya Gonna Call? By Barry Hess

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.

That to secure these Rights, governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."

So states the American Declaration of Independence—probably the single most significant and unique document ever divined by civilized men. This was a group who possessed intellectual depth, certainty, compassion, commitment, forethought and precision of language that has yet to be duplicated in the last two hundred plus years.

"A man who thinks of himself as belonging to a particular national group in America has not yet become an American."

- Woodrow Wilson

Maybe that's why I am always dumbfounded when I hear or read anyone suggesting that 'we' Americans should be 'like the rest of the world' in some way or another. Such nonsense ranks right up there with supposedly intelligent politicians repeatedly saying 'we' (Americans) live in a 'Democracy'. In just this last election, of the 6 or 7 presidential candidates who were on enough state ballots to mathematically win either or both, the electoral or popular vote, only two repeatedly insisted that America is a democracy. Can you guess which two they were? I'll give you a hint; the only two the news media bothered to cover, and one of them is a reigning President.

(Continued on page 9)

Who Ya Gonna Call?

(Continued from page 8)

A ‘democracy’ was considered by America’s Founding Fathers to be the single ‘most vile form of government’, called ‘tyranny of the majority’ because a ‘democracy’ is the epitome of a socialist’s utopia. Such a system of government operates on the premise that somehow--mysteriously, a majority possesses a magical trump card that can override or ‘vote away’ the ‘certain unalienable Rights’ of each ‘equal’ individual in the minority. Scary thought: Sometimes a ‘majority’ only means all the idiots are on the same side.

Such a vulgar thought should greatly disturb each and every thinking person who knows that our singular ‘social obligation’ is to protect the unalienable Rights of the next generation, and more so, every parent who honestly loves their children. ‘Un-alien-able’, means just what it says. Pay attention to the ‘un’ part.

As the document that defined America clearly states, the singular purpose of our particular government is to protect the individual Rights and property of each Citizen from force and fraud. There is not, and has never been, any other national government with such a clear directive—so how could we possibly ‘be like any other nation on Earth? Why did/do you let a reigning President (or his Democrat rival) get away with misrepresenting America as a ‘democracy’?

Our government is charged with protecting each of us (as individual equals) and our property from illegitimate force and fraud. So what is that individual supposed to do when both offenses have been and continue to be inflicted upon them by America’s government itself?

It is the government itself that steals its Citizen’s property through deadly force claiming authority under something called a “1040 Tax” (no such tax is even found in the tax code), “Asset Forfeiture” (a clear deprivation of a Constitutional mandate requiring Due Process of Law), a “Death Tax” (Can your government really claim a vested interest in your demise?), and a private “Property Tax” (How can you own something that can be ‘taxed’ out from under you?).

Where do these mysterious ‘powers’ come from? The Declaration and our national charter are clear—they don’t exist. To claim that they do is nothing short of fraud... deception by a bureaucracy. We are living under the same tyranny that led to this world’s greatest revolution way back in the 1770s.

What can you or I do about it? Remember that ‘forethought’ thing I mentioned earlier? I’m telling ya the Framers, in their tight little knickers, were a brilliant lot. Let’s read on from that Declaration that changed the world;

“That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive to these ends (protecting individual Rights), it is the Right of the People to alter or abolish it...”

(Continued on page 10)

"Never underestimate the power of world domination!"
1st Lt. Rekve's solution to all the problems in the world.

“One of the serious problems in planning the fight against American doctrine, is that the Americans do not read their manuals, nor do they feel any obligation to follow their doctrine...”
From a Soviet Junior Lt's Notebook

"Army: A body of men assembled to rectify the mistakes of the diplomats."
Josephus Daniels

"Unless every man is trained beforehand in peacetime for that role in war, one has only people who bear the name of the business without knowing how to practice it".

- Fredrick the Great

Who Ya Gonna Call?

(Continued from page 9)

Frederick Douglas is credited with saying, "The limits of tyranny are defined by the endurance of the oppressed".

The limits of my 'endurance', and that of a fast-growing number of 'the People', has long since run out—how about yours? Do you really love your children enough to stand up for their Freedom and fix the problem before they are forced to a bloody revolution?

Barry Hess is Vice-Chair of Arizona Libertarian Party as well as a past and prospective gubernatorial candidate. He can be reached at BarryHess@Earthlink.Net

Copyright of the author © 2004 – All Rights Reserved
No Reproduction without Written Permission

Dream Link Online Information Service

24 Hour Sales
(207) 786 - 3207
Ask for Brian!
New Customer
Sign-Up Special -
$10 Per Month -
Unlimited Access
WEB HOSTING
PROMO -
1 Page With Hosting -
$100 for the Year!

Please tell Brian you read about Dream Link Online in the

*Patriot
Perspective
Newsletter*

A Note From the Editor

With this issue, we mark the one year anniversary of the Patriot Perspective Newsletter! It has been a tough year and there were times when it didn't seem as though this newsletter would survive, but with the Creator's help, it did!

We now have another site where you can access the newsletter. Please visit and let us know what you think. http://patriot_perspective.latest-info.com

We continue to offer our sincere appreciation to our friend and compatriot Brian at Dream Link Online for offering us a location to house the archives of the Patriot Perspective Newsletter! We know our readers will support Dream Link as they offer some great specials for dial-up and web hosting with thousands of local access numbers.

We are always on the look-out for contributors. You'll notice that in this issue, the first three articles are by Barry Hess. He will be joining us as a regular contributor and I look forward to having him with us. I know you will also.

Do not forget that we would like our readers to send us an email and let us know what you think. About anything. If you don't mind being quoted, we may include your post in the next issue. Send comments to patriot_perspective@myway.com

If anyone knows who the author is of TEN TIPS ON HOW TO LIVE IN THE NEW WORLD ORDER, which you'll find on page 11, please let us know so that we may give them credit!

In Liberty,

Texas Spitfire

"War gives the right to the conquerors to impose any condition they please upon the vanquished."

- Julius Caesar

"No person was ever honored for what he received.

Honor has been the reward for what he gave."

- Calvin Coolidge

"Whoever has an army has power, and war decides everything."

- Mao Tse Tung

"The world has achieved brilliance without conscience. Ours is a world of nuclear giants and ethical infants."

Gen. Omar Bradley

TEN TIPS ON HOW TO LIVE IN THE NEW WORLD ORDER

[Ed. Note: I received this in an email. Author Unknown.]

1. WATCH LOTS OF TELEVISION. Television pleasantly sublimates the primitive human defense mechanism that can get you in trouble.
2. AVOID TALKING ABOUT RELIGION OR POLITICS. No matter how innocuous your speech may be, it could be misinterpreted and recorded in your Government Personal Thought Dossier.
3. IDENTIFY YOURSELF BY SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBER. Use of one's Christian or Family name may be perceived as prideful individualism... a class B. felony..
4. PUBLICLY DISOWN FAMILY MEMBERS AND FRIENDS WHO HAVE BEEN COERCIVELY ENROLLED IN RE-EDUCATION CENTERS. NWO Rules of Justice provide for expeditious prosecution and conviction of Guilt by association.
5. VOTE CORRECTLY. The new fax, phone, and email balloting system is carefully monitored by Elections Security Police (ESP) to identify potential dissidents and enemies of the world. Avoid voting for mavericks, most of who are sponsored and financed by the World Government Opportunities Agency (WGOA) to bring malcontents out into the open. To assure minimal risk when voting, cast your ballots for incumbents having an A-1 rating by the ADL.
6. ATTEND ALL POLITICALLY CORRECT RALLIES AND PATRIOTIC FUNCTIONS IN YOUR AREA. To obtain additional merit points, carry a sign, which derides viewpoints held by Constitutionalists, Patriot Groups, Fundamentalist Christians and other bigots.
7. MEMORIZE THE OPINIONS OF THE NWO LEADERS AND TELEVISION ANCHOR PERSONS. Reiterate them as if they were your own during all-social and business conversations.
8. ATHEISM IS THE SAFEST POLICY. But affiliations with State Approved religious organizations are permitted, and may be a rich field for business contacts.
9. BE AMONG THE FIRST IN YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD TO TURN IN YOUR SPORTING RIFLES WHEN THE UNITED NATIONS UNIVERSAL PLOW-SHARES ACT GOES INTO EFFECT. You will be well fed under the terms of the Social Pan-Agriculture And Wildlife Protection Program. Hunting will be unnecessary and possession of any firearm of any description after the effective date of UPA will constitute the capital offense of Aggravated Intent to Commit Homicide, a class A felony.
10. WILLINGLY AND HAPPILY SURRENDER YOUR PARENTAL RIGHTS. Participate enthusiastically in the new OBE, Goals 2000, and School to Work Program, and realize the honor associated with being a breeder and care taker of the first generation to serve the masters of the New World Order.

Our Mission

The Patriot Perspective was created to offer information, education and commentary for those Americans who have recognized that America is not following the original intent of our founders. The “Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness”, enumerated by the Constitution, are “inalienable” rights given by God and have always existed. The definition of “inalienable rights” used in our Declaration of Independence means:

"Rights which can never be abridged because they are so fundamental"

- Black's Law Dictionary 6th Edition

Our Rights are given to us by a higher authority than the "state" The state can only grant privileges (licenses). What the state grants, the state can take away. Are you willing to submit to ore state control so you can live with the illusion of safety? It is YOUR choice.

All rights reserved.

All copyrighted work within this newsletter is distributed under fair use without profit or payment to those who have expressed a prior interest in receiving the included information for nonprofit research and educational purposes only. [Ref: <http://www.law.cornell.edu/uscode/17/107.shtml>] Under Common Law, all rights belong to the creator. The above disclaimer is placed here for those who prefer to deal in statutory, rather than common law venues.

Readers understand and agree to our Disclaimer:

All representations of the law and quoted sources are accurate and complete to the best for our ability. We make no claims as to how the courts may interpret the "Rule of Law" or the Constitution of the united States .

Special Note to Our Readers

The Patriot Perspective newsletter is produced by Texas Spitfire Productions, which has been in existence since 2001. All rights are reserved. Authors are responsible for their views and the content of their articles. We do not edit articles except for spelling and grammatical errors where found. All work is presumed copyrighted by the submitting author. As always, we are seeking contributors. If you would like to submit an article or if you have an idea or suggestion, please send an email to the address below. If you received this newsletter from a friend or the website and would like to subscribe, send an email with “Subscribe” in the subject line to the email address below. The original subscribers list was lost due to a computer crash.

Please submit all articles or comments to:

Texas Spitfire Productions

c/o 1431 Wirt Rd, #123

Houston, republic of Texas uSA

Non-Domestic [77055 TDC]

patriot_perspective@myway.com

http://patriot_perspective.latest-info.com

<http://www.realtruth.biz/patriotperspective>